

Governor Baker vetoed the Prison Moratorium on August 4th. The legislature also failed to pass critical legislation that communities are depending on- including No Cost Calls.

Formerly incarcerated women are demanding a special session in September to override Baker's veto of the Prison Moratorium and pass No Cost Calls with no amendments.

Hello my name is _____ and I'm your constituent. The legislature left too much business unfinished this session. Our communities are counting on you to pass our priorities. I am asking you to call for a special session in September and stay in session until you 1) override Governor Baker's veto of the Jail and Prison Construction Moratorium and 2) pass no cost calls with no amendments that will expand criminalization or pretrial incarceration. I am ready for a different way forward for Massachusetts. We already know incarceration has failed to create safety and wellbeing. There is an active contract to study and design the new women's prison- so we can't wait for next session. Please do everything in your power to ensure the Prison Moratorium and No Cost Calls are passed into law."

#REIMAGINING COMMUNITIES

We are Families for Justice as Healing and the National Council for Incarcerated and Formerly Incarcerated Women and Girls. Our mission is to end the incarceration of women and girls.

Directly affected women are leading work to build community infrastructure to stop the flow of people into incarceration & create what different looks like.

We need a 5 year Moratorium on jail and prison construction so we can focus on releasing women, implementing real alternatives, and investing in community-led solutions that create real safety and wellbeing.
